

Article Processing Fee

Article Processing Fee

The IJS | International Journal of Sciences adopts the open access publishing model. Open Access gives anyone in the world free and immediate online access to academic literature to read, download, distribute and reuse. In order to maintain a sustainable open access platform and thus serve as a communication channel between academic communities, authors pay an article processing fee (APC) for manuscripts that have undergone peer review and have been accepted for publication.

There are no fees for submission, nor charges for items that are rejected.
